Three Chapters that Contain a Sequel.

There are three chapters in the "Family Physician" which are worthy of special mention, namely, those on "Discusses of Women," "Leases of Infaptis" and "Care of the sick."

The a st of these is a medel of its kin. It is chaste in lemenage, contains no discuit glicituse for children to happen on and be overcure us about, a disken altogether is the most practical, sen lible and straign: forward frestice upon this defice te sufject that has everbeen peinted.

This chapter alone the worth many times the cost of the book to every mother even if it had to be purchesed at its regular rice.

The other chanters referred to are equility well written and valuable.

THE UNDERCURRENT. An Illustration of Petty Jeal-

The Journal of Tuesday morning copies an article from the Virginia Chronicle on the Board of Trade which Spicy Debate on the shows that the Journal is still keeping up its little jealousies. Why, neighbor, do you insist in running everything that gives the movement a black eye? Why not be decent and fall into line and trust to an all-wise Providence for your reward? It cannot be possible that you cannot see the great good that can be accomplished. The following is an extract from the letter, referred to, and the chances are 10 to 1 that the "street scavangers" in the list will do ten times as much good as fist will do ten times as much good as the correspondent in question will ever do this or any other contry:

There are many substantial improvements being unde in this city. Quite a number of fine buildings are in course of construction and the sewage system perfected. Great enthusiasm is manifested in the recently organized State Board of Trade, which is the largest in the United States, and is far superior (physically) to anything of the kind ever organized in any country. It kind ever organized in any country. It is composed of representative men from all parts of Nevada, and every voter in and about Reno—from banker to street scavenger—irrespective of race, color or previous political proclivities, is a charter member. Mr. Francis G. Newlands, the California lion of Nevada is President, assisted by a large number of Vice-Presidents. Great re-sults are expected from this organiza-tion by its promoters, to whom it will doubtless prove remunerative.

The officers did wrong, in their haste, to honor every man, thinking perhaps he would return the compliment by some act of kindness in re-

Congressional Matters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The specia House committee appointed to invest! gate the Ohio ballot-box forgery began its work this morning. Representative McKinley was the first witness to appear.

In the House to-day McKinley of Ohio, from the Committee on Rules, reported a resolution for the appointment of a committee on the World's Fair to consist of thirteen members, which committee shall within three days report plans by which the House can determine the site of the proposed fair and subsequently report a bill providing for the fair.

Mr. Cannon of Illinois, from the minority of the committee, reported a substitute resolution as follows:

WHEREAS, On the 18th and 20th days of December and at other times. which arrived here nearly on time, got on Foreign Affairs divers bills, petistuck in a snow-drift a short distance west of here, and was obliged to back jected World's Fair of 1892, thereby to town and telegraph up the road for giving full jurisdiction to that Com-mittee of the whole subject matter, dead in from three to six minutes.

Resolved, That the Committee on Foreign Affairs be instructed to report a resolution providing the method of the selection of a locality for the World's Fair of 1892 by a vote of the House of Representatives. First— Whether said Fair shall be held east of or west of the Allegheny Mountains; second—the selection of the place for the location of said Fair. After such yote shall have been taken the Committee, at the earliest possible day, shall report a bill providing for a World's Fair in 1892, to be held at the place selected as above provided.

Mr. Frank of Missouri strongly advocated the majority re-port. Mr. Springer of Illinois denied that there had been any compact between the representatives of the competing cities. It was true that they had agreeed to request the Speaker to call a meeting of the Committee on Rules in order to create a special committee, but the only intention of that agreement was that the committee might sit during the holiday recess.

Mr. Springer denied the right of any gentleman to meet in hotel parlors and make a compact to bind members of the House. Mr. Hatch replied that if the repreto keep the compact, they should meet with them. Mr. Springer astucky, Mr. Chipman of Michigan and Mr. Hooker of Mississippi spoke in favor of the majority report. Mr. Payne of New York supported the ma-

Six Murderers Executed. By Associated Press.1

FORT SMITH, Ark., Jan. 16.—The hanging of six condemned murderers took place to-day at 12 o'clock. The men executed were? Austin the Choctaw, John Billy, Thomas Willis, Sam

The crime for which Austin paid the penalty was an unprovoked murder of Thomas Elliott in May, 1883.

John Billy and Thomas Willis, both full-blooded Choctaws, were convicted jointly of the murder of a white man, whose name was supposed to be A. B. Williams. Williams had refused to give the Indians whisky, and they killed him.

Sam Goin and Jimmie Burris, also Choctaws, murdered Houston Joyce of Franklin, Texas, in November, 1888, for his money.

The last man was Jefferson Jones, another Choctaw. His victim was an old man named Henry Wilson, whom he killed while going through the Territory, on the 12th of March last.

The prisoners bore their fate with much nerve, standing on the scaffold fully twenty minutes while the preparations were being made. The work, however, went on with precision and dispatch. When the fatal drop came there was but a slight groan from one, and a gentle swing of six black bodies -not a twitch or a shrug. All were > London, Jan. 16.—The trial of Mr. Parke, editor of the North London Press, on a charge of criminal libel preferred against him by the Earl of Euston, was concluded to-day. Justice Hawkins, in summing up the case. spoke of the great and manifest discrepancies in the testimony of the witnesses called by Mr. Parke's counsel to identify the Earl of Euston. He said that if the story told by witness Saul, who testified that he and the Earl of Euston had committed a criminal action in a house in Cleveland street, was true, he marvelled that Saul had not been prosecuted, and that a warrant against the Earl of Euston had not been applied for.

Mr. Parke was found guilty of libeling the Earl and was sentenced to one

The members of these exchanges "toil not neither do they spin" in any legitimate productive or distributive business, but simply, by virtue of their organization, levy toll upon a great industry. They form an important link in the chain of devices intended to bring prices down to producers and run them up to consumers.

The San Francisco Bulletin says: The Western ranchman complains that there is no profit in cattleraising at current rates, and the workingman of the great cities finds beef too dear for his pocket. Meantime the members of the exchanges are getting rich and combining to break down all efforts to loosen their grip on producer and consumer. It might be supposed the organization which did so well in the first year of its existence would be able to go ahead, but too many interests have been combined against it. With the exchanges, the Dressed-beef Combination and the railways against them, it becomes an uphill tight. The law is beginning to make an impression upon the trusts. How to Kill Foxtall.

The Kern County California says On the South Fork last year, J. B. Firebaugh plowed up twenty-seven acres of alfalfa, because the field was nearly captured by foxtail, and sowed barley. It yielded 631 sacks, averagbarley. It yielded 631 sacks, averaging 115 pounds per sack or 2,687 pounds per acre. This was sold in Kernville, only four miles away, for $1 65 per hundred pounds, making a return of $44 35 per acre. This treatment killed the foxtail, and the field will be re-sowed to alfalfa this season, and another patch of fifty acres will be this year similarly treated. Such a fine yield of barley pays sufficient profit to make anti-foxtail treatment highly remunerative.

Suffeient Sleep. The Hospital says: In this age of hurry and worry, with its consequent nervous exhaustion, of which so much is now heard, the necessity of taking sufficient sleep cannot be insisted upor too forcibly. To lay down any hard and fast rule for its regulation is not possible, for, naturally, brain workers require more than the drones of society; in fact, every brain worker, if he wishes his powers to last, should take from eight to nine hours' sleep out of every twenty-four. Charles Lamb did not think eight hours enough, whereas Sarah Bernhardt finds six hours a sufficient quantum of sleep.

Snowed In Sheep Hustling Sick ness Rough On Stock.
The Silver State of the 15th inst.

The deep snow which fell last Sunday has almost buried several flocks of sheep. There are fllocks in Eden Valley and in Paradise Valley where the snow is about two feet deep. Railroad men say there are several thousand in the valley near Mill City in the deep snow and a small flock belonging to Thomas Nelson was snowed in at Rose Creek, and hay was shipped by rail from this place yesterday to feed rail from this place yesterday to feed them.

J. W. Morris, who has charge of several thousand head of Thomas Nelson's sheep, was in town yesterday. He says the snow is twenty inches deep on the level in Grass Valley, notwithstanding which sheep are getting along comparatively well. They are turned loose in the big brush, and take care of themselves as best they can. They feed on the brush, and, of course, do not attempt to flounder around much in the snow.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Walker Blaine Dies of Pneumonia

at Washington.

A Washington dispatch of the 15th inst. says: Walker Blaine, Solicitor of the State Department, and son of the Secretary of State, is dead.

Young Blaine died of acute pneu monia, superinduced by an attack of la grippe. He had been ill only a few days, and his death is a sudden and severe shock to his friends, while the family is prostrated with grief. He was not feeling well at all last week, and Friday he became much worse, and was compelled to take to his bed. The Secretary gave a dinner party Monday night, and Walker Blaine was then feeling so much better he sat up for some time chatting with the guests and afterwards walked about the house. He contracted additional cold, which quickly settled on his lungs and developed into acute pneumonia last night. This morning his condition was so alarming that all immediate relatives of the family were hastily summoned here by telegraph. He was delirious most of the day.

PECULIAR PIGMIES.

Rare and Diminutive Members of the Animal Kingdom.

Ponies as Small as Sheep—The Sacred Bull of India—Reverence Paid the Mild-Eyed Creature by the Natives-Other Freaks of Nature.

In one of the zoological gardens of Europe a collection of animal pigmies was exhibited some years ago, and, per-haps, an assemblage of animals never attracted more attention, especially from the young folks.

The creatures that constituted this exhibition were not dwarfs, but merely forms that were extremely small naturally There was a pony that once be-longed to the Czar of Russia and so small and cunning was it that not a few of the spectators considered it a sheep, as it was about the size of one of these animals. With its fluffy mane, long hair and tail it presented a very comical appearance, and as for hoofs, they were so small and delicate that shoes had never been made to fit them, but, as the pony's life was spent on a soft green, it probably did not feel the need of them.

a baby deer that was so diminutive that the hat of one of the visitors would have covered it. This little creature was called the Hegoleh, and its home was in the deep forests of Abyssinia, near the Gambia river.

Another equally small deer, called the Delo, was of a rich fawn color, with white flanks and black ankles and a most expressive and intelligent face. The males only had horns, delicate little objects, of little or no use as a de-fense. The females had, instead, a curious bunch of hair upon the head that met at a point and seemed to resemble the top of a peaked night-cap.

One of the most interesting animals of this wonderful collection was a little fawn not over two feet high, with a coat of soft gray colors, great lustrous brown eyes and bearing upon its back a hump, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times. In fact, it was an exact copy, except as to size, of the famous sacred bull of India, being very closely related to the animal that is still so revered in many parts of the Eastern country.

This little animal is of especial interest, as but one has ever been brought to this country, and they are so rare that they have never figured in natural history. The sacred animals are called Brahma bulls in the East, and the attention paid to their wants by the natives is a source of astonishment to all

The sacred animal wanders through the streets of the great cities, receiving mage wherever it goes. If it meets a native carriage or cart in a narrow street the vehicle is carefully pulled to one side that the animal may not be disturbed, and if the mild-eyed creature should thrust its head into the carriage window it would be considered a piece of good fortune by the driver, while the European occupant would probably ob-

The actions of these animals are extremely amusing. They wander slowly along, nibbling from the various stands that line the streets, helping themselves to goods offered for sale, winking and blinking lazily their great brown eyes, well knowing, perhaps, that they are safe from all objection on the part of the owners. Sometimes they stray into it out. houses and lie down in front of doors, ceeded and until they choose to move the inmates can not pass out, as it would be sacrilege to step over the sacred ani-

A naturalist traveling in India one night came to a small town that offered some of the Quaint Customs Observed in the Old Dominion. remain for several days. Such a thing as an inn was unknown, but he finally obtained lodging in a private house with a man of the better class, who was quite well off-that is, he owned his house and land and several cattle.

The room occupied by the traveler was what would have been considered the hall of an ordinary house and not very private to say the least. A mat in the corner constituted his bed, but it was better than the jungle and he was very glad to get it.

He retired quite late and had been asleep for an hour or two when he was awakened by a clanking, as if a horse was coming into the house. Louder it grew, and hastily striking a light the traveler saw a sacred bull slowly coming along the hall. It approached to within a few feet of him, and after sniffing around laid down and was soon fast asleep. The next morning the owner of the house seemed to think the traveler had been much favored in having so sacred a room-mate. These animals are found not only in India but are more or less common in Persia, Arabia and even Africa, where they are known as the zebra, the name applying to several species, ranging from large to small. In some localities they are used as beasts of burden, as we use oxen here, but generally they lead a life of luxury, waited on and tended by the superstitious natives.

A PRAYER ANSWERED.

An Elder Who Did Not Reject Aid Providentially Sent.

Elder John Stephens held a pastorate in the Free Baptist church at Gardiner forty-odd years ago. Nature, says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, had dealt genrously with Elder John. His big heart was ineased in an iron frame of mam-moth proportions. Remarkable alike for sincere piety and genuine humor, the good man so tempered his teachings as to make them acceptable to saint and sinner. Riding one day along the road to West Gardiner he overtook an oxteam that was stuck in the mud. The discouraged cattle had refused to pull, and the driver, who had sworn till the air was blue, was preparing to reel off another string of oaths when the parson stopped his horse and said: "Try prayer, my friend. Try prayer."

"Try it yourself," retorted the vexed

"I'll do it," said Elder John, and dropped on his knees in the wagon. For awhile he prayed around his subject as if afraid to touch it. Gradually, however, his faith strengthened, and in a voice which bade fair to arouse the neighborhood he besought the owner of the cattle on a thousand hills to move the hearts and legs of those stubborn and lauded by the multitudes."

exen. The prayer was unconscion bly long, and no sooner had it ended an the impatient driver prepared to art

"Stop," said Elder John, descer ing from his wagon: "as I have done the praying I feel that I ought to describe driving. You hold my horse and the men the goad stick."

The man consented to the arrangement, and with a grin waited to see the parson worsted. At that moment another ox team was seen approaching from another direction.
"Hello, neighbor!" the practical parson shouted to the newcomer. "Lend me your cattle for a moment." "Hold on!" cried the owner of the mired cart. "That's no fair. If you can handle this team better by praying than I can by swearing I want to see you do it; but no doubling up, mind you; no doubling up."

Elder John's robust figure was drawn to its fullest height and his voice was like the roar of the ocean as he answered: "My friend, the Master I serve is abundantly able to move this load with a single yoke of oxen—or without any oxen at all; but when in direct answer to prayer he sends me an extra pair of cattle I'm going to hook 'em on!"
No further objection was raised, and Quite as remarkable as the pony was a deer with perfect horns that was with the aid of reinforcements the hardly larger than a good-sized cat, and

DOWN ON THE BABOON.

The Ape Sadly Demoralized with the Advance of Civilization.

The baboon, writes the Graaff-Reinet Advertiser, a South African paper, seems to be changing its nature with the changing climatic conditions. In former years he was a vegetarian, his worst offense being stealing mealies in the gardens when he got the chance. Now he has taken to other ways of getting a livelihood. Some say he has joined the carnivora. Any way, it is ness to get hold of lambs, tear them open and drink their mother's milk in their stomachs. Said a farmer the other day to a brother farmer: "Have you lots of honey on your farm?" Answer: "No, the baboons rob all the nests. "How do they do it? the bees would sting them to death." The answer was that probably the baboons did the work in the night when the bees were drowsy, sleepy and dull. Any way, he believed the baboons got off with the swag of honey wherever they could get at a nest.

Then Mr. Peter Booysen, of Moorfontein, has his story to tell of the new development of the baboon: It attacks the wild aloe, pulls it down and tears out the pith for food. Mr Booysen, Sr., does not object to this, as he would be glad if all the wild aloes on his farm were cleaned out by any means whatsoever. The special wish of the father and son is that baboons would take some food-providing operations which would get rid of the prickly pear. But, as the substance of the leaf and of the trunk of the prickly pear is nothing but water, the wish is not likely to be gratifled. Any way, the poisoning clubs have classed the baboon with the wild carnivora, and the rifle and arsenic are now busy destroying him. Farmers give interesting instances of the difficulty of poisoning the baboon, the fellow being about as "slim" as a human being. One farmer believes the fellow tastes the poison as prepared and disguised for him, and, if he finds it is not a good thing for the stomach, spits The farmer, however, has succeeded in giving the arsenic such palatable surroundings that the shrewdness of the baboon is not proof against the palatable temptation, and he dies.

DOWN IN VIRGINNY.

"I found a peculiar custom up at Shepherdstown, W. Va., where I spent my vaca-tion," said Fred Ernst to a Washington Post man, "which was a novelty. The people have what they call 'soups.' a sort of outdoor picnic. Each person invited brings a dressed chicken. The host provides the vegetables. The chickens and vegetables are put into huge kettles holding ten to twenty gallons and cooked over open fires for several hours until the combina tion is reduced almost to a jelly. Pepper and other seasonings are introduced. The young folks sur the soup with long-handled iron spoons, walking around the kettle as they stir. When a girl's spoon clinks against the spoon of a young man he is bound to catch and kiss her. As you can imagine, there are a good many lively scrimmages around the kettle. When the soup is done it is ladled out into plates and eaten, and it is delicious. "The custom is an old one, and I was unable to find its origin. A company of Stonewall Jackson's command was recruited around Shepherdstown, and it still keeps up the organization. It has a reunion every year and celebrates the occasion with a grand 'soup.' A 'soup' of that company to be properly gotten up should be made of stolen chickens, but the veterans have had to give up foraging since the war, and now make a compromise with necessity by going around in squads and robbing each other's hen-roosts by a prearranged un-

"'Now, see here, General,' said Colonel Morgan, 'there are as many Union men around here as Confederates, so don't go blazing away against the North and offend ing these people.'

'But I have my speech all written out,' exclaimed General Rosser.

'' 'Can't help it. Just talk about agriculture, if you please.'
"So the hero of the Shenandoah had to

"So the nero of the Shenandoah had to bottle his hurrah speech, though he couldn't help letting a little of it out.
"There was a traveling photographer up there," continued Mr. Ernst, "who came over to take a picture of Colonel Morgan's guests. We arranged ourselves on the front steps. General Rosser took his position on the process.

the porch. A couple of colored boys came out and stood on each side of the General. "'Get out of this!" he shouted; 'I don't want any darkies in a picture with me!"
"The boys shot off into the house and sneaked around into the parlor, where they stood in the windows. When the pictures were finished there was General Rosser as natural as life with a grinning colored boy in each window at his back."

ENGINES HALF HUMAN.

ne Carry Cats in the Cab for Good Luck and Others Do Not Care to Start on a Run on Friday-Presenti-ments of Accidents.

A great many tales have been told about railroad engineers and the queer notions they have about their "pets," as they call them. Some of these stories look all right in print, but in reality they are pure inventions. The Globe-Democrat correspondent resolved to interview a number of railroad engineers in view of securing their experiences with locomotives, and to find out, if possible, whether engineers, as a rule. are superstitious.

Creston is quite a railroad town, and is the end of a division. It is no trick at all to meet a half dozen railroad engineers, and as they are all good fellows, an interview is cheerfully granted.

Tom H- is one of the oldest and most reliable engineers on the C., B. & Q. railroad. Being asked concerning locomotives and their engineers, he said:

"A locomotive engine is, to my mind, as near human as any inanimate object can be. Sometimes I think that they are more than half human. Of course that's all fancy, though. I have driven this engine, No. 483, for ten or fifteen years, and I know every inch of her, and know how to manage the old lady Some days she gets cross and doesn't seem to care about working Then I have got to coax her. Other days she'll feel bad and take on at a dreadful rate; then I've got to doctor her carefully. We fellows have a way of tending to these little matters. As a general rule my engine is in good trim and goes like a bird. She acts like a human, trembling with certain that he makes it a food busi- excitement if there is a prospect for fast running.

"Do I believe in presentiments? Well. I'll have to say yes. The night we went into a ditch near Malvern, smashing up things badly, I told Jim (the fireman) a half hour before the accident happened that something was coming, because I never before knew the engine to act so queer. She didn't want to go, and when crowded her she pounded badly, seem ing to drag like, along the rails. When the poor girl toppled over on her back in the ditch I thought she groaned awfully. I believe an engine smells danger ahead, somehow, and then goes to tremblin' and pounding. Leastwise mine always did."

"Ever see any ghosts? "Well, can't say, that I ever did but once. We were coming west from Ottumwa about midnight. It was moon light, and I could see ahead pretty well. We were nearing a place where a young girl had been killed while crossing the track on a little pony. As we came up rapidly I noticed something white on the track in front, and presently, to my horror and astonishment, I saw the shadowy outline of a young girl. She was holding a little pony by the bridle rein, and the animal was prancing with fright. Both were square on the track I blew the whistle and turned on the air At this moment the girl turned her face toward the engine. A long, cruel red scar extended from her fore head to the chin. Her eyes had a piti-ful look. But we couldn't have stopped the train for our lives. We dashed upon them and-went through the apparition like it was a cloud of mist. I felt a chilly sensation as we passed, and my blouse was damp, as if dew had fallen upon it. That was the only apparition I ever saw. Poor W— ran over the girl, and has never ceased to grieve about it."

It is almost amusing to note the of queer fancie have about certain things. Yet, as far as known, these fancies do not debar them from being brave and trustworthy men. While they may have many a superstitious fear that an accident is impending, it does not unnerve them. and is more likely to keep them on a sharper lookout. Many an engineer be-lieves that his fate is only a question of time, while others believe themselves to be insured against accidents.

It is said that the engineer on one of the express trains that telescoped between Creston and Ottumwa some years ago, when so many passengers were killed, had vague forebodings of impending disaster for several days. It was a feeling that he could not shake off. His intuition proved correct, and, through the blunder of an operator, a horrible accident happened.

Brothers and Sisters.

Brothers and sisters are all the better for sharing one another's studies and games up to a certain point. The girl who can handle a tennis racket and a croquetemallet vindicates her right to consideration. The boys will never speak of her as "only a girl," and she will be all the franker and none the less sweet for a healthy mixture of work and play. Good comradeship between brothers and sisters is a thing much to be de sired; it saves the girls from prudery and the boys from boorishness, sweetens the natures of both, and acts by restraining every one from doing or saying what would be shameful in the eyes of the "other side."

A Taste of Luxury Once a Year.

A hoary-headed old tramp, rich with the experience of years, reaped a rich harvest on election day. Leaning heavily upon his staff, he would approach a polling place. An embassy would hurry forward to receive him. He would remark that his old limbs were chilled, and he would warm up a bit before cast-ing his vote. Borne into a saloon he would then be treated to the warmest and best potions in the house. By and by he would say: "What district is this?" and being answered would exclaim: "Ah, I am in such a district," and then march slowly away to work other places in the same manner.
